Seed of Change

The readings today seem to praise what is small – the mustard seed which begins small. God is also praising the normal development of life which is gradual. We start as babies, family love grows over the years, romance starts with a glance or a look and then develops. The best in life has small beginnings. Maybe God’s way of judging us and the world is different than we might imagine. A Jesuit preacher once said that Jesus says; “feed my sheep; he doesn’t say count them!” One of his best stories was leaving ninety-nine sheep alone while he searched for the lost one. Each person is relevant, each is loved and important.

If we can see everyone like this we are almost like a shelter for people, as the mustard seed grew big enough to shelter the birds of the air. God shelters us in the love we share with others. We never know when the harvest of our goodness will be seen. With God if we do the best we can to grow in goodness and in love, and in the following of his Gospel, the harvest will be reaped and we may never know it. People in the caring professions know this, as do parents, that what we have tried to do in love and care for others is never wasted. Mother Teresa put it well when she said; “God doesn’t ask us to be successful, he asks us to be faithful.” May we continue in our efforts to be faithful to the Lord’s call so as to strengthen our communion with him and with one another.

"What is the kingdom of God like? And to what shall I compare it? It is like a grain of mustard seed which a man took and sowed in his garden; and it grew and became a tree, and the birds of the air made nests in its branches."
- Luke 13: 18-19

Statio Orbis is the Liturgy on the final day of the 50th International Eucharistic Congress taking place today in Croke Park. The Mass will be celebrated by the Papal Legate. RTÉ will broadcast the Mass from Croke Park on television and online.

Free Pre-School Year in Early Childhood Care and Education (ECCE) supported by Department of Children and Youth Affairs. What is the free Pre-School Year in Early Childhood Care and Education? The ECCE programme is designed to give children access to a free pre-school year of appropriate programme-based activities in the year before they start primary school. Participation in a pre-school programme provides children with their first formal experience of early learning, the starting-point of their educational and social development outside the home. Children who avail of pre-school are more likely to be ready for school and a formal learning and social environment. In general, each eligible child is entitled to one free pre-school year. The only criteria for eligibility is age. In September 2012 a child must have been born on or after 2nd February 2008 and on or before 30th June 2009.
